HARRY COVERDALE'S COURTSHP, AND WHAT CAME OF IT (Continued.)

CHAPTER XIX.

HORACE D'ALMAYNE PUTS HIS FOOT IN IT!

The pie-nie was a very grand one, and the bal costume all that Alice's fancy had painted it, and a few over, as her long husband was pleased to express it. The young couple went dressed as Romeo and Juliet. Harry, if left to himself would have chosen a clown's suit of motley, but Alice considered the romantic preferable to the ridiculous, and so he yielded, though it must be confessed that he abhorred the most stalwart, robust, and cheerful representation of the then Veronese lover that can well be imagined. Alice (although she also would have looked the part better if her damask cheek had not glowed quite so brightly with health and happiness) made an extremely fascinating little Juliet, and produced a sensation which delighted her husband, and bid fair to turn her own pretty head.

The bal and pie-nie being safely accomplished, and Alice perceiving that, although he did not again openly broach the subject, Harry's thoughts were continually wandering to Coverdale Park, pretended (like a little hypocrite, as she was) that she began to feel home-sick, and that, although Paris was all very charming and agreeable for a little while, she should be very sorry to stay there long. Thus, the day of their departure was fixed, so that Harry should be enabled to reach home before the first of September, as Alice (choosing the lesser of two evils) meant to encourage his shooting occasionally for a few hours, as a bribe to induce him to give up that senseless and dangerous pastime, hunting; and she actually believed that her influence would accomplish all this—dear, innocent little Alice!

On the morning before they were to start, a letter arrived from the Grange. Alice read it eagerly.

"Oh, Harry!" she exclaimed, "what do you think! Emily tells me: what a strange, extraordinary, dreadful thing—it seems quite impossible!"

"What is it, little wife?" returned Harry. "Has your father turned Free-trader, and invited Messrs. Cobden and Bright to stay with him, or has Arthur been made Lord Chancellor?"

"Something almost as wonderful," was the rejoinder. "Mr. Crane has proposed for my cousin Kate's hand, and she has positively accepted him."

"And a very sensible thing, too," replied Harry, who, leaving over the back of his chair, was surreptitiously attaching an ornamental pen-wiper to the end of one of her long silken ringlets; "I dare say, now, you're bitterly repenting your own folly, in having allowed her the chance!"

Alice, turning her head quickly to administer condign punishment for this speech by a tug at her lord and master's ample whiskers, became aware of the scheme laid against her unconscious ringlet, by reason of a twitch, which Harry, unprepared for her sudden movement, was unable to avoid giving it.

"You silly boy! what are you doing to me? oh! you've tied a horrid thing to my jet curl; take it off directly, sir! But seriously, now, about Kate; dearest Harry—do be sensible, please, and let me talk to you." This exhortation was called forth by the feet of the incorrigible Coverdale having placed the pen-wiper, which was a sort of cross between a three-barreledcocked hat and an impossible pyramid, on the top of his wife's head, just where the cross-roads in the parting of her hair occurred.

"Talk away, during, I'm about as sensible as it's at all likely you'll ever find me," was the reply.

"Well, don't you really and truly think it very shocking that such a girl as Kate, so clever and handsom, so unusually superior, should throw herself away upon that silly old man whom she cannot even respect?" rejoined Alice.

"If I must speak the plain truth," replied Harry, "I should say that a girl who could make such a sacrifice of her own free will, isn't worth pitying for it; she must be both mercenary and ambitious—serious faults in a man but positive vices in a woman, because in yielding to them she is sinning against all the better instincts of her nature—for such a character I can feel no sympathy."

"But, indeed, Harry, she is not such a dreadful heartless creature as you imagine her, at least she never used to be. On the contrary, when we were all children together, she was rather high-flown and romantic. It was during the time she was at school, and under the care of a horrid woman, a Miss Crofton."

"A Miss how much?" inquired Harry.

"Miss Crofton."

"What was her Christian name?" continued Harry.

"Arabella," was the reply.

"By Jove! did you ever see her; was she a tall dark-looking creature, with great flashing eyes like a gipsy?"

"Yes, that is an exact description of her," returned Alice, in surprise; "but why do you ask?—what do you know of her?"

"No good," returned Harry, mysteriously, shaking his head; "but never mind, go on."

A Splendid Work of Art, gratis.

The "American Cosmopolitan Art Association" give to the subscribers of their "Journal" for the current year, a magnificent engraving of Faed's great picture of "SHAKESPEARE AND HIS FRIENDS." The subscription price to the "Journal" (a beautifully illustrated octavo Quarterly,) is only Three Dollars; which not only entitles the subscriber to the picture above named—worth at least $25—but gives him chances of prizes in works of Art, worth from $1000 to $6000. The Cosmopolitan Art Association is an institution permanently established; eminently deserving of the confidence and patronage of the public. For several years the proprietors have been scattering gems of Art broad cast over the Union, by their "Annual distribution of Prizes;" while through the medium of their excellent "Journal," they are creating a taste for pictures and statuary that cannot fail to manifest itself in a more refined appreciation of artistic beauty throughout the country. The Association are proprietors of the famous "DUZELDON GALLERY" of Paintings, in New York, the finest collection of pictures ever exhibited in America, and every year several of the "gems" are distributed as prizes among the subscribers. We have only space to suggest to our readers that, by sending $3 to the "Cosmopolitan Art Association" of New York, they will receive a beautiful "Art Journal" for one year; the superb engraving of "Shakespeare and his Friends;" Herring's "Village Blacksmith;" and a chance for an Art-prize, worth $6000!! Who can resist the temptation?

The "OLD" SPIRIT OF THE TIMES.—We deem it an act of editorial courtesy to our ancient friend, the "OLD" SPIRIT OF THE TIMES, and one of the oldest weekly papers in the Union, to say, that it is not identified or involved in any way in the controversy recently brought before the public through "POPE'S SPIRIT," and "WILKES' SPIRIT OF THE TIMES" a mistake that is not altogether unavoidable, the names of the papers mentioned being nearly the same. "The Old" Spirit, as it is familiarly termed by its friends and subscribers, still flourishes, the leading journal of the Turf and of the Field, and we are happy to hear that at subscription list was never larger than at present, or its editors and publishers more prosperous.

Local Facts and Gossip.

A FIRE THAT BEGAN AND ENDED IN SMOKE—About 1 1/2 o'clock, p.m., yesterday, people in Thames street commenced shouting "Fire!" others took up the cry, and in a few moments the whole street and town was in an uproar. Nobody could tell where it was, or, indeed, that there was any fire, though somebody said it was one of the factories down town, so down town they all rushed, the engines, and the "trag, tag and boholt" after them. Perry Mill, the woolen mill, and the old stone mill, were successively reached, and found to be all right, and only the Coddington factory remained to be visited, when word was passed along the line that there was no fire, and the engines started on the back track, enjoying the felicity of returning home in the midst of a drenching shower.

THE SHORE ROUTE TO NEW YORK.—Tomorrow the Golden Gate makes her last trip for the season between this city and East Greenwich. There seems to be a general desire that this route between Newport and New York should be kept open during the winter months. This can only be done by means of the Ferry. If that boat should change her hour of starting from Newport to 7 1/2 in the morning, and from Providence to a later hour than 2 o'clock, and the arrangement of the trains be changed accordingly, this could be effected. We understand an effort is being made to bring about such an arrangement.

NEWPORT EXPORTING LUMBER TO THE WEST INDIES.—The brig "Amanda Jane" will take out about 200,000 feet of lumber to the West Indies and a market, on account of Messrs. Finch, Eads & Co., of this city. This lumber, as we have previously remarked, was sawed up by men in the employ of the above firm, in the forests of Pennsylvania, taken to Elizabethport by rail, and thence shipped to Newport for this and other markets.

FAIR WEATHER FIREWORKS.—Yesterday, as Hook and Ladder Co., No. 1, was hurrying to the scene of the fair, a shower came up, and there was a general stampede from the ropes. Such foolishness as those should acquaint themselves with the famous "Sit-Still" Company.

Mr. BROWNELL, Esq., is creating a substantial brick wall in front of his premises, on Mary-street. As he has invited to favor the public as in a former instance with the particulars concerning the work, it is presumed they are at liberty to "ask questions."

PERSONAL.—We see it stated that a vol. of the sermons of Rev. Charles T. Brooks, of this city, will appear this Fall, from the press of Crosby, Nichols & Co., Boston.

A SCREW LOOSE.—Before the Perry charged her trips, we received the Providence Evening Press regularly on the day of its publication; now we don't get it at all. This is too bad, and we appeal to brother Cooke for a remedy.

THE ANNUAL FIREMEN'S REVIEW takes place at 1 o'clock, to-day. Should the weather prove favorable, a spicy time is expected

St. Louis Correspondence.

We very much regret that the following interesting letter from our St. Louis correspondent could not have been received in time for its earlier publication, but have, however, concluded it was best to give it entire to our readers rather than to prune it of its least newsworthy and most interesting portions.

ED. NEWS.
AUTUMN, AND THE FAIR AT ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS Sept. 19th, 1859.
DEAR SIR:—We may now look back upon the past few months of Summer, and note the many pleasures that have characterized them above any previous year. No direful calamities, or contagious diseases, have laid waste any portion of our fair land. Nothing has occurred to mar the happiness of those, who released from the cares of business, have sought enjoyment in travelling; or to disturb the quiet enjoyment of those who stayed at home. The Autumnal months are here with their ever varying sunshine and storm. The one to recall to our minds the glorious season just past; the other to herald, as it were, the chilling blasts of winter. How appropriately has Autumn been called the "evening twilight of the seasons."

My thoughts have been called to this by the peculiarly autumnal weather of to-day. The morning dawned pleasantly, yet with a few clouds here and there in the sky. As day advanced they were dispersed by the bright rays of the Sun, and clear sky, and the warm, balmy air seemed like the middle of summer. But later in the day, the sky became overcast, dark clouds appeared, and cool breezes came from the North. Soon they assumed a threatening aspect, vivid lightnings were seen and low muttering thunder heard, while everything indicated a storm. And now as night shuts down on the earth, the storm breaks upon us; the winds blow fiercely, and the rain descends in torrents, shedding the usual gloom on all around.

Autumn, however, with all its varied changes, has many pleasant features. The gathering in of the cereal products of the earth, renders glad the husbandman. It starts anew the wheels of commerce and invigorates the marts of trade.

Among the many pleasures which the Autumnal months bring to us in St. Louis, is the annual occurrence of the "Agricultural and Mechanical Fair." It commences on the 26th of the month, and runs fair on this occasion to exceed all previous years in the number of articles on exhibition and the many attractions they have to offer. The beautiful grounds, of which so much has been said, are in magnificent order. The five hundred stalls for "stock" are already full, and arrangements are being made for the accommodation of more.

Numerous and costly buildings have been added for the exhibition of articles of Manufacture, and Art, which together with $20,000, to be distributed in premiums, even without charge for competing articles, renders it the most elaborate, and extensive Fair in our whole country.

How can it be otherwise than beneficial, for the liberal premiums paid can but induce all classes of producers and manufacturers to compete for prizes. It causes competition, that sterling life which is necessary for the healthy working of all business. St. Louis has felt its benefits already, in the rapidly increasing number of her manufacturing establishments, and in the superior style of their workmanship.

Besides, the money paid at the premiums is not lost. The large number of strangers who are attracted here during the Fair week, bring and leave three times the amount of money they take away. Then the merchant from the country when he comes to the Fair also takes the opportunity to buy his stock of goods at the same time, when he might, if not for the attraction here, go elsewhere to purchase, and St. Louis would lose the sale.

In conversation, a short time ago, with a prominent gentleman, connected with the "Aquadneck Agricultural Society" of Middletown, I was surprised to learn the small amount they were able to offer in premiums at their Annual Fair. I know that the people of Newport like to attend those Fairs, and often come away dissatisfied with what they have seen. Why is it that the display is not larger, or finer?

Is it not the lack of inducement, the want of some motive to excite a healthy competition among the farmers on the Island?

They can not afford the time or expense of preparing their cattle and produce for exhibition unless they have some prospect of recompence. The people of Newport, cannot afford to send their valuable articles of beauty, or fine workmanship, out to that Fair, incurring risk of injury, or some little expense, unless they have some motive in doing. Thus if the directors of the Fair could offer larger sums in premiums, or at least more of them, the individuals would have many to compete for prizes who have not done so before, and the display would be more worthy of exhibition.

If I may be pardoned for the idea, I would propose that Newport, who is perhaps more interested than any other place, should give one or two thousand dollars at least, towards making that Fair what it should be. If they cannot do that why not five hundred dollars? It would be returned to them in time, for it would draw people to the place to make up in part for the large amount taken to Providence every year to witness Fairs and cattle shows there. There is no reason why State Fairs should not be held at Newport or on the Island, and not many years would elapse before beautiful grounds and buildings could be permanently sustained for the purpose.

St. Louis is still rapidly in the ascendent. Horse Railroads now connect the most distant suburbs with the centre of the city. Beautiful and costly buildings are in progress of erection on almost every street. Business, though perhaps not as brisk as usual, is still very good. The reported frosts in the more Northern States Minnesota, Iowa, and Wisconsin may affect the trade somewhat, but Missouri is sound as a dollar and her business is no small item. The low stage of water in our rivers is somewhat a damper on navigation, yet light-draft boats find plenty to do, and give some signs of activity and life. A great feature in the amusement line last week, was the opening of the "New Opera troupe." They have met so far, with a cordial welcome, and will be sustained, if they continue the same high order of music with which they commenced. My time, and your columns will not permit my writing more at present. Meanwhile,

I am yours, &c.,
ISOLE.

regard to it, let them call at resemble those of coal gas: the shape of the
